Here are the photos from our visit to the Centre for Life. Your children were amazingly well behaved and polite and the public commented on how smart they looked and how sensible they were. We really enjoyed the day with them and their excitement and enthusiasm, as well as their confidence to go on such a big adventure were fabulous.

Our first activity was the planetarium, and needless to say we were unable to take any photos, but we had a magical time gazing at the stars and learning about some of the incredible robots who have explored outer space and the images they have sent back to Earth. The children were mesmerised and listened really well to the commentary.

We then went on to a show all about science experiments you can do in your kitchen, where the demonstrator made things invisible, defied gravity and best of all made huge bubbles. Watch this space as we were taking notes about how to conduct these experiments in the classroom.

The Curiosity Zone was filled with activities which made the children think and wonder about the science they could see happening. We saw floating balls and scarves and used cogs and wheels to create lots of different effects.

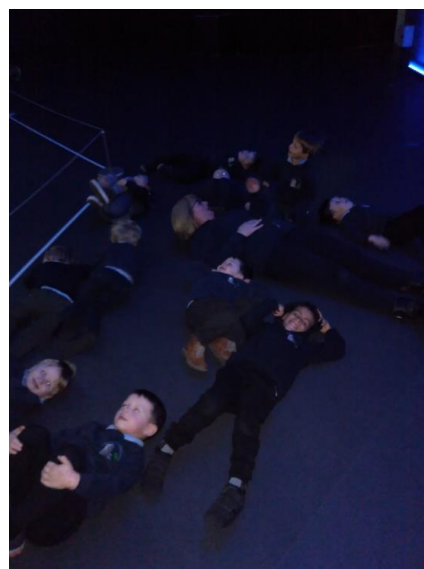

In the children's play area, we had lots of lovely free time to play with toys and build and experiment. We were in here with the public and all the children were kind and respectful towards the other little children who were playing alongside them. Once again the toys and games helped them explore lots of different science concepts in their own time.

We were very ready for our lunch and enjoyed a special place in the cafeteria where we sat and munched away, while watching all the people around us. We loved our sandwiches and oaty biscuits from Josie and all ate well.

Well done to all our children who learned lots and behaved so well on our day out. Next week, we have a toddler stay and play session for any little ones to join us on Tuesday at 1.15pm. Come along for some Easter crafts and outdoor play. Our Easter Eucharist service with Canon Judy is on Wednesday at 9.30am. Parents and family are welcome to attend the service.

Happy Easter to all our Splash children and families. We hope you have a lovely family time and enjoy having your children at home for the holidays. We look forward to hearing about all their adventures when they come back to school.
